Who Is This Course Designed For?

- Security Managers
- Veterans/ex forces
- Facilities Managers
- Corporate security staff
- People moving into protective security careers

This qualification was designed in collaboration with and is endorsed by the Protective Security Centre (Home Office). In addition, it is endorsed by the government's National Protective Security Authority, UK National Authority for Counter Eavesdropping and National Cyber Security Centre.

The qualification is designed for the role of 'Protective Security Adviser' to safeguard an organisation's assets: People, Information, Physical Property and Systems. It does this by implementing integrated security measures across physical, personnel, technical and cyber domains. Found in both public and private sectors, Protective Security Advisers conduct risk assessments, develop and review mitigations, and promote a converged security approach to close gaps between security disciplines.

Completion of this qualification will provide an understanding of how the protective security disciplines dovetail to provide the foundations of 'security convergence'.
